Then her mum helped her to start making cakes – like her brother’s birthday cake in the shape of a car. She managed to add lots of details like the windows and wheels and he loved it! So did the other children – and their mothers. Soon, one of them asked for another one. She had to make this in the shape of a princess’s castle! More orders followed. Then a cake shop asked her to supply them. Ann was worried about time, but they offered a special arrangement: Ann did not have to accept all their orders – only the ones that she could manage.
