Reading and comprehension (45 Points)

1- Read the two texts and do the tasks below: (25 points)

A: Most schools claim to prepare students for the world of work, but Milton Secondary School takes the claim very seriously. Before they even join the school, future pupils get an informal interview at their primary school to discuss their hope and preferences for the future.

The emphasis on employment continues during the first two years at Milton and then in the third year all pupils spend a day doing work experience at a local company. Two years later, this becomes a whole week spent with a company, usually arranged by the students themselves.

Throughout their secondary education, students have professional careers advice which costs the school over $30,000 a year. Head teacher Harriet Downs believes it's worth it. 'Teachers aren't trained as careers advisers,' she says, " so we bring in professional help. It's part of coordinated program that aims to make students aware of the employment options available, and how to make the most of them. It's too late to start talking about work in their final year.

B: In a speech yesterday, the Education Minister advised students to avoid arts subjects and choose science or maths if they want to improve their job prospects. In the past, he said, arts subjects like languages and history were chosen by students who didn't have a clear idea of what they wanted to do in the future. He explained that this was because of feeling that they involved skills that were useful for many different jobs, but he questioned whether this was still true: 'Nowadays, we know differently. The best subjects for keeping your options open are ones like science, technology and engineering.

It quickly became clear that the minister's words were controversial, with teachers and university heads reacting strongly to his advice. ' Of course, science and technology are important,' said one, 'but it would be completely wrong to neglect the arts. They provide important skills and an understanding of the world and people in general. Also, the economy depends as much on creativity as on technical knowledge'.

2- Read the text and do the tasks below: (20 points)

..... Our society tends to place an emphasis on romantic relationships. We think that just finding that right person will make us happy and fulfilled. But research shows that friends are actually even more important to our psychological welfare. Friends bring more happiness into our lives than virtually anything else. Friendships have a huge impact on your mental health . Good friends relieve stress, provide comfort and joy, and prevent loneliness and isolation. Developing close friendships can also have a powerful impact on your physical health. Friends are even tied to longevity. One Swedish study found that, along with physical activity, maintaining a rich network of friends can add significant years to your life . If you are looking for new friends, be clear on what kind of friends you want to make.

..... Broadly speaking, there are 3 types of friends “Hi-Bye” friends (or acquaintances) are the ones you see at school/work because the context calls for it.. The relationship never lasts when the context is removed, i.e. when you graduate from school or leave the workplace. There are also regular friends whom you meet up every now and then to catch up or hang out with. You can generally talk about regular topics under the sun. And there are the true, soul friends (or best friends), people you can talk anything and everything with. You may or may not meet up every day, but it doesn’t matter as the strength of your friendship is not determined by how frequently you meet up — it’s more than that. These are the friends you can trust to be there for you whenever you need them, and they will go the extra mile for you

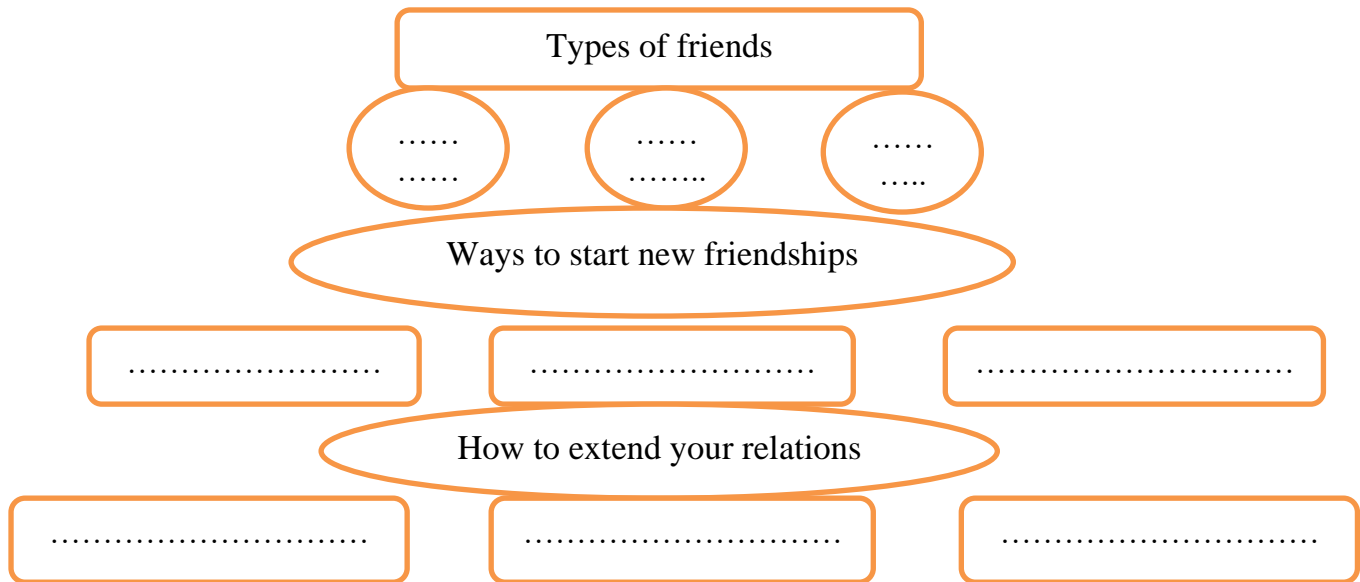

Most of us are looking to make regular friends and if possible, true, soul friends. But how can we make and keep friends???

..... If you haven’t been socializing much, meeting a whole bunch of new people may seem intimidating. If so, start small first. Lower the difficulty of the task by starting off with your inner circle of friends, i.e. people you are more familiar with. Some ways to do that are reaching out to acquaintances and trying to reconnect with them, getting to know your friends’ friends (If you are comfortable with your friends, there’s a good chance you will be comfortable with their friends too) , and accepting invitations to go out.. If you want to have more friends, you have to step out of your comfort zone and go out more often. You can’t make more friends in real life if you stay at home! Once you acquaint yourself more with your inner circle of friends, the next step will be to extend to people you don’t know. Join meet up groups. Go to parties. And take part in online communities. Soon, you’ll get to know the people there better.
